Hawaiian Gazette.

EST. MODUS IN REBUS.

TUESDAY, JULY 13, 1886.

WHEN the Mokoli matter comes to be properly investigated a little crookedness will be found in the Interior Department. It will be interesting to learn how it was the James I. Donnell got put on the route and what coercion was used to make parties put their freight on her rather than on the Wildcat. We alluded to this matter eighteen months or so ago. If the members of the committee do their work thoroughly they will have an amusing story to tell, which will go a long way to support those "anonymous accusations" about which the Government organ waxes so eloquent.

The five minute rule which has been brought in and has passed the House works well in some Assemblies. Whether it will so work here is problematical. It practically puts into the hands of the majority a gag upon any extended argument by members of the minority. In other countries courtesy extends the five minutes to a member of the minority, when he has really something to say, but we have seen how little courtesy is to be expected from the present House, which could spring the previous question on the Hon. L. A. Thurston and prevent him defending himself when he was personally attacked.

The Custom House returns show an increase of exports as compared with the corresponding six months of 1885, of $1,480,671.40. The chief item which shows up as being usual, our great staple sugar. Rice has fallen off 206,803 pounds. We are sorry to notice a falling off in the export of bananas. These were giving a livelihood to small cultivators, and we were in hopes of seeing the industry flourish.

As to the further expansion of the sugar industry here, we doubt it. We believe that the Islands have nearly reached their limit of production. Those who know the Islands best say we shall never have as heavy a crop again as we are having this year.

Our readers are referred to the tables which will be found on another page.

What has our economical administration to say about the maintenance of "Hawaiian Youths" abroad, for the benefit of foreign education? There is one grave and revered Seigneur who has been living on Hawaiian grants these five years past! He was nominated in 1880, as the beneficiary of the National Grant. It may be, that he is an accomplished Italian soldier, or engineer, or something, it may be he is not, in any case what are we going to do about it? This appears to be a fair question that any member may ask of the Ministry. Let not the questioner be too hurried in his demand for an answer. Give the Ministry ample time to shuffle down to the bottom of their boxes of records which so readily require sorting, and arranging and binding, and let them tell the country how much public money has been spent on "Hawaiian Youths," who maintained them and what there is to show for the expense!

And this leads to a consideration on the subject of old bones. The Genealogy Board under its old title does not seem to have re-appeared in this session of the Legislature, but bills, or petitions are on the paper asking for public money to enable Ministerial nominees to fill their pockets under the pretense of guarding the remains of indistinguishable malo-clad Chief-lets. Let the House look to it!

HERE we are well into July, and there seems no prospect of a speedy termination of the Legislative Session. The Appropriation Bill has not yet passed its second reading, and every item has to be gone over again on third reading. It is the final decision over which the great fight will be made by the alien Cabinet. Economy is a good card to play during the second reading, it pleases the thinking members both of the House and of the community. Whether real economy is meant will be seen when the Government uses the full force of its majority upon the third reading. We rather fancy the Appropriation Bill will take a fresh complexion when the final struggle comes. Then and not till then shall we know what the alien Ministry really mean.

The Appropriation Bill is really a remarkable jumble. There are the original estimates brought in by ex-Minister Kapena, there are the additions, substitutions and revisions made by the members of the House, there are the changes proposed in consequence of the King's desire for reduction in expense, and lastly there are the changes which the alien Cabinet must desire to make in order to carry out their policy, because it is impossible that it should be identical with that of their predecessors, or why should there have been a change? It must be evident to all that the alien power which shuffled the cards and threw Messrs. Gulick, Kapena and Neumann out of the pack, did not put in Messrs. Creighton, Dare and Kanoa in their places to carry out the Appropriation Bill exactly as the former intended. They were put in to do what the former gentlemen would not do. That small "nigger in the fence" will crop out soon enough.

This is a strange Government—a very strange sort of Government which we live under. Referring more particularly to the Executive, in what sense are the present Ministers, or were their predecessors, the ultimate outcome of representative institutions? Cannot the whole Bar of the Kingdom furnish a suitable Attorney-General, but must a gentleman be imported who has never held a brief in one of our Courts, one whose capability or suitability for his portfolio no opportunity has ever been afforded to the public, that it might express an opinion?

Have we no Engineers in the country, that a Superintendent of Public Works, and a Consulting Engineer must be imported to do the work which might be equally well done by men born and bred in the Kingdom?

Have we no physicians of ten, or of twenty, or more years of experience, knowing the language, the idiosyncracies, the special pathology of Hawaiians, that obscure strangers should invariably take the place of well tried men?

Have we no man, native or kamaaina, capable of dictating a circular to our Consuls abroad, or of acknowledging and answering a formal courtesy from a foreign government, which is all that our Foreign Office ought to have to do, except, it may be, watching over our interests in Washington, which would probably have never been so endangered as they have been, had not this system of imported Ministers come into fashion?

Have we no able business men who, while conducting the affairs of great mercantile houses, might be held capable of controlling the finances of this Kingdom? Is there no active, energetic promoter of business, transits of passengers and merchandise, one who might cause the construction of reservoirs, wharves or other works of public usefulness, who might administer the Interior Department?

Yes—there is—there are, these and all other talents, within the Kingdom, available for the use of the Kingdom, but then this Kingdom is governed, not from within but from without! Instead of Hawaii for the Hawaiians, it is now Hawaii for the ALIEN!

MR. DARE is the latest specimen of Cabinet furniture imported by the Cabinet tinkerer. He has the advantage over his official chief, in that, so far as this country is concerned, he has no record. It is but natural that a new man in a new country should attempt to show his best side, and put his best foot foremost. It may therefore be taken for granted that we are now seeing that gentleman's best side; and to say the least, it is not encouraging to the friends of Hawaii. He had an opportunity last Thursday, upon the discussion of Mr. Dickey's bill, making certain office holders ineligible for election as Representatives. He had a chance to show that, in spite of the cloud which hangs over him, owing to the origin of his appointment, he possessed at least, the elements of a statesman, and was not a mere puppet; but the opportunity was thrown away, and without a blush he proclaimed that he wore a collar, and was tied to the end of a string.

Packing the Legislature with office holders is the curse of the present regime, and a constant menace to the country and its property interests. An office holder is not a free man. His living depends upon the favor of the Ministers, and recent history shows that the unpardonable sin is to fail to act the partizan in favor of every act and wish of a superior officer. The office holding representatives, almost without exception, are mere puppets, going up when the string is pulled and down when it is loosed. They are also in a position to intimidate and corrupt voters and prevent a free ballot, and they avail themselves of their opportunities, with a zeal worthy of a better cause. The districts which are represented by office holders might as well have sent the Ministers a power of attorney to vote for them, and saved the expense of Representatives' salaries. This is a state of things which every honest man deplores, but this alien Attorney-General, apparently revelled in the opportunity to show his colors, and delivered himself of as pretty a string of hackneyed, threadbare claptrap about the ins and the outs, and the desperate struggle which the opposition were making for office, as though he had been editor of the Advertiser for a year, instead of being a twenty-four hour denizen, manufactured to order. If this is a sample of the new Attorney-General's best side, the change of incumbency in that office is from one frying pan into another, if not into the fire.

THE excitement in Great Britain over the present election is intense. It has not been so keen since the days of the Great Reform Bill in 1832. The contest is undoubtedly an acrimonious one. Whether it will be got through without serious rioting, if not worse, is quite problematical. The signs of the times point to a great upheaval. When the leaders, in so large a State as Great Britain, lose their temper, and metaphorically come to blows, it is not long before their followers imitate their example and practically come to blows.

If any one will look back into the past, he will see that the close of almost every century is a time of ferment. It is almost needless to particularize, but we would point to the fall of Rome at the end of the fifth century, the rush of the Saxons at the end of the sixth, the wave of the Mahometan sweeping towards Europe at the end of the seventh, and coming nearer to our own times, we have the fever of the French revolution at the end of the eighteenth, and we are now watching what the nineteenth will give us. Illustrations might be multiplied, but to any educated man or woman they are unnecessary.

It is not only in Great Britain that a radical change is going on. In the United States the labor question is presenting a problem, most difficult of solution, and one which will try, to the utmost, both the executive ability and the political foresight of its best men. It is an old problem transported to a new soil.

Russia is also unquiet, she ever must be so under her present form of government. Some outlet has to be found for the energy of the nation, and nothing suits the popular feeling more than a war with the infidel Turk and a chance at Constantinople. The idea is a religious one. The Russian regards himself as the heir of the Byzantine Emperors, his very title of Czar is but a corruption of Caesar, his Christianity came to him from Constantinople. To Constantinople he looks and hopes some day to have mass performed in St. Sophia, the Christian Church which has stood over 1,200 years, and which the Turk has polluted for one third of that time.

Taking political feeling, labor troubles and religious fervor, together with the many other influences which are at work in minor countries, and we have a seething caldron which ought to produce even a more fatal brew than did the celebrated stewpan of the witches in Macbeth.

The exodus of whites from this country still continues; how long it can stand the drain and business remain good in the retail stores is very problematical. As will be seen from the tables we publish below, 314 whites have left our shores, while 119 have come in, leaving a balance of 195 against the country. Of Chinese, during the month there has only been a gain of nine, but there has been a considerable influx during the early days of July. Now the small gain of nine point one way, and that is the gradual Asiaticizing of the Islands under the present Government. We are in fact getting the yellow plague with a vengeance.

MR. GIBSON, now Minister of Interior, has always had affinities for Eastern nations; he likes their customs and would transplant them to Hawaiian soil. For the white man he cares nothing. For the Hawaiian he has shown that he cares nothing; but if he can only get a set of Asiatics under his sway he will be happy. It was his dream in youth, he wishes to realize it in his old age. Drive the Hawaiian to the wall, get rid of the shrewd American and the hardly less shrewd European, and then, for the Minister of the Interior, will commence a period of true happiness. A renegade Christian, who cloaks his views under a pretense of love for any Church, a man that has joined those who set the moral law for the civilized world at defiance, is not a man that can gain much confidence from those whom he is unfortunately placed to rule over.

Our present Minister of Interior is such a man. He has forsown himself as a Christian by becoming a Mormon, he has shown what his views of morality are by joining the same body. That he has joined countless churches since, only shows how little he values religious thought. To-day a Mormon, to-morrow a Congregationalist, the next a Roman Catholic. This is the man who has been managing our affairs, it is a wonder that he prefers to pour in heathens into the country.

When the time is ripe we may look for the Minister of Interior burning joss-sticks in the joss-houses of his pets the heathen Asiatics, and we may behold the moving spectacle of the Minister cursing in set terms the Pan Qui, or Foreign Devil.

Special Notices

A CARD.

Since establishing our Mission in this city, we have frequently been solicited to procure larger and more convenient quarters for worship and Bible class, quite a number expressing themselves as willing to contribute toward the necessary expense. We have now secured the building on Fort street, formerly used as a gymnasium, thus incurring quite a debt; besides, some changes are necessary. Therefore we would say to all who would esteem it a privilege to aid us in the matter that they can confer with Mr. N. F. BURGESS, or with the undersigned.

Dated Honolulu, July 9th, 1886.

IN THE LOBBY.

If there's a hole in 'your coats
I rede ye tent it.
A chief's amang ye takin' notes
And faith he'll print it.

Every one is enquiring who is Dare. I confess that I did not know him myself, until he appeared in his chair in the House, but then I have not been in the country a very long time. It is rather hard on the kamaaina, as you call them, to have a man in the cabinet whom they do not know even by sight.

My friend Vavasour Brown took a trip up to Maui last week. While on the steamer he overheard your friend Sir Claus talking of the Ministry. He reports him saying that had your people said nothing about himself, he would have turned Gibson out long ago, but as you have said hard things about him (Claus) he was going to keep Gibson there to spite you. Sakes, what a set you are to be sat on as you are, but you seem to like it.

Kaulaok is a shrewd politician and I think, a pretty efficient deputy sheriff. Now, I wonder if he ever heard anything in Hilo about a rumor of a deficit in the tax receipts amounting to about $8,000. I would be real pleased, if there is any truth in the rumor, to have Lot tell me truly all he knew about it. Wouldn't you?

I don't think that that old gentleman from Kohala did quite right in resigning from the Finance Committee. I am supported in my opinion by the appointment of George Richardson (a Government man to all intents and purposes) thereon in his place. He should have stood on and helped Dickey. Now the indefatigable Dickey will have to, practically, wrestle alone.

And, en passant, I may mention that the dear George is having a rather anxious time of it in playing the part of Tantalus. Several official copies have been, almost, as good as tendered to him, but—some unforeseen circumstance has stepped in and compels him to still remain, without his thirst for office appeased.

Which reminds me, my dear Richardson, of the old adage that, "Hope deferred maketh the heart sick," and, if such is the case, do not run any additional risk of being stomach sick, by taking that trip to Molokai.

By the way was it not Kean that raised that row long ago about some of the papers calling him a "wiseacre"? Of course, like O'Connell's Irish woman I was the name that flustered him. Now I wonder if he believes the miracle of Balaam's ass? I do, for I don't see why it isn't as easy for an ass to talk like a man, as it is for a man to talk like an ass. Eh?

Of course you don't know that that dare devil fellow from California is a poet? You would if you had been with me in the lobby last Thursday when I heard his baritone voice uttering these lines:

For all the ills beneath the sun
There is a remedy or there is none;
If one, find it;
If none, never mind it.

Now there is poetry for you, and philosophy too! But didn't Castle, (you know him—that rather redoubtable Representative from Waikuku) didn't he just lay him (the other fellow) out in one round? When he asked if he was acquainted with the constitution of his own country, and then substituted for "own country," "United States." About that time the smell of "a mess of pottage" must have tickled the olfactory nerves of the poet.

I do miss Paul Neumann. I have sat in the lobby, cross-legged, for hours, just for the sake of hearing some of his sarcasms. And, when Paul spoke, he generally said something; I now listen in vain for—something.

The puter of the liquor and opium bills of last session, the renowned linguist and artist, Liliha, astonished the members of the Assembly the other day by his place and, in stentorian tones demanding that, "a voice be heard in Honolulu." The eagle eye of the speaker being fixed on the nervous messenger, that official supplied what voice he could by immediately kicking an unoffending one of his own within reach, and—the voice was heard, amid general merriment.

I am in unison with Neumann in regard to Thurston, that "something in the boy." You bet, there's something in him, and he frequently lets it out, much to the trepidation of those who form the malihini Ministry. He has a heavy load on his shoulders though, during the absence of Dole, his left brow.

Dickey is a daisy, for springing things, in the matter of financial irregularities, at the perplexed ministers. Only lately he quietly informed the new Minister of Interior that there was a deficit of about $16,000 in the estimate made, by that official's predecessor, in the single item of Road Taxes. I hear he has another rod in pickle to place across the back of another Minister.

Don't you bother about those rumors, floating about at present, relative to the deputation of Soper, Dayton, Tripp and some lesser lights. The changes will take place, but not all, not now; the sweat and blood enough for them. The members of the House are not in a very amiable mood and it will not do to permit Santa Claus to make any more presents, just now.

Creighton interests me as a sort of living curiosity; he is silent as an oyster, busy as a bee, vain as a peacock, nervous as a cat, thrifty, O yes, thrifty as a camel, shrewd as a fox, and meek as a monardella. I wonder if the gold braided coat of his predecessor will fit him, or will he have to buy a new one? I think I'll ask him. ZIP.
